Abstract

The article describes the educational importance of culture speech the popularization and development of the knowledge of society members due to it.

Keywords: culture of speech, culture of written speech, norm, literary language, art of speaking, speech ethics, oral and written speech.

The educational value of speech culture is great. The importance of speech culture is not limited to simple knowledge, but also includes enlightenment, that is, the simplest career of knowledge.

Every child born into the world needs to know a lot of things in order to become a real person. At the stage of primary education, he learns by understanding, hearing and reading the knowledge he needs. Learning by listening and reading is done through language and speech. The educational importance of speech culture is that, thanks to it, the knowledge of society members is popularized and developed. In addition, thanks to speech, knowledge is passed from generation to generation orally and in writing. As a result, the new generation continues the work of the previous generation without restarting it. Because of this, development is ensured and developed. Thanks to the culture of written speech, we get the most ancient information, and we even get information about the future. Reading activity creates important conditions for the development of intelligence, sensitivity, observation, memorization and recall capabilities of a student of junior school age. Every student gets the main source of knowledge from school education. Of course, this knowledge is realized through oral and written speech.

The feature of learning and teaching speech culture is that general concepts are formed by studying the existence with the help of words. Thanks to speech culture, we learn to distinguish between right and wrong, good and bad. From this point of view, speech culture has a great educational value.

Speech culture is an activity that determines the formation of socially valuable qualities of behavior in students and their relationships with each other, family, other people, Motherland, work, and society.

Speech culture not only envisages the formation of moral knowledge in students, but also assumes that these norms become the views and beliefs of a person and are defined as his habitual forms of behavior. The goal of speech culture is to form speech ethics.

Based on the above, we defined the tasks of forming speech culture in students as follows:

- formation and development of speech emotions;
- formation of speech skills and habits;
- to understand the importance of words in historical, social and economic development, to practice speech etiquette, speech culture, and language culture in accordance with the traditions and customs of our people;
- to be able to clearly express one's opinion orally and in writing, to be able to prove one's opinion, to have the skills of speaking, hearing and convincing others;
- to feel the need to acquire knowledge and to have the ability to demonstrate one's knowledge and abilities; active participation in studies and team work, forming a creative attitude to work;
- demanding on speech culture, able to eliminate speech defects;
- to have the qualities of speech etiquette; to speak kindly;
- flexibility, accessibility, eloquence, etc. in the process of speaking.

In order to inculcate the listed qualities in students, it is necessary to follow the following conditions:

- perfect study of the literary language in the formation of students' speech culture;
- organization of practical activities of the family and the environment in the formation of students' speech culture;
- to explain that the art of speaking is a sign of spirituality and perfection;
- using the opportunities of the lesson process in forming the students' speech culture;

it is appropriate to study Mahmoud Kashgari's thoughts about the art of speaking in the works of "Devan-u Lugatit Turk" and Alisher Navoi's "Mahbub ul-Qulub" in the course and extracurricular process.

At the conclusion of these thoughts, it can be noted that in the context of the worsening socio-political situation in the world community, giving importance to the art of public speaking has an important place. In this regard, the formation of speech culture among students is directly related to their moral consciousness, maturity level of moral activity, moral needs and moral orientations, level of unity of words and deeds, in short, active life. Therefore, as a result of the formation of speech culture, everyone actively enters into various social relations. Thanks to the culture of speech, every citizen actively participates in the life of our country, which is striving to build a legal-democratic state, showing his learning, talent, aspiration, diligence, hard work. He fights against aggressive political forces with his speech, thought, and thinking. Everyone with his independent, critical opinion, not only in Uzbekistan, but also in the social and political situation in the world community; expresses its attitude towards negative vices such as religious extremism and drug addiction. In short, the formation of speech culture is not only to develop knowledge, thoughts, and thinking, but also to raise the growing generation with patriotism and humane qualities, and to educate them with communication skills that can actively fight against negative evils.
